me at 16/ a week ; and I supplied sawdust to him at a price he was to pay me. Any profit was to be his - Ellen Elliot entered my service two years ago. Prisoner made her acquaintance and for a time lived in my house. He slept in the stable except when I was from home when he slept in the house. Ellen Elliot left my service about the middle of March last and she was married to Prisoner in beginning of April. Prisoner and I parted in March because he brought in no money.

I have seen Prisoner assault his wife on two or three occasions. The first time on Wednesday after marriage, he punched her face in my house. She was going to pay me the money he owed (£ 13-14/) on which I was to take him back. He was tipsy and struck her on face.

The second occasion was outside a public house in Whitechapel in June
