take my business away and start for himself. I have often heard Ellen speak of her money. I always understood she had £600. I asked her why she did not draw it out and buy a machine and start in business. She said she would not draw it till she got married. She and Prisoner were bitter against each other. Always in front of me they were.

A woman Spooner lived with me. She is dead.

4. Elizabeth Haynes, 3 Swaton Road, Campbell Road, Bow, London. Aged fifty. Married. Husband employed in a colour work. I knew Ellen Elliot. I remember Prisoner's marriage to her. I was present. She had a room in my house for twelve months before her marriage, and lodged there regularly for one month. On first Saturday after marriage Prisoner and his wife were in my house. He was not sober. She told me he wanted money and she would.
